Culprit Confession!

At the end of a mystery story, the person who caused the mystery—the culprit—usually confesses: they admit they did it and explain why. Plan your own Culprit Confession below!

What did the culprit do to cause a problem?
How do you want the reader to feel about the culprit? Angry? Sorry? Surprised? Something else?
What does the culprit say? Write their confession! Have your culprit explain the reason why they caused the mystery. This reason should make the reader feel the emotion you wrote above.
