

3-Panel Comics with Emotion

NAME: _____

Stories can be told through words and through drawings, and when they're combined it's called a comic. Comics can be as long as whole books, but it really only takes 3 pictures, or panels, to tell a simple story. We can tell a story showing how a character's emotions change. Emotions are feelings we all feel sometimes like sad, angry, or confused.

FIRST, draw a character and show them feeling a strong emotion. Think about the direction their mouth and eyebrows are pointing to show that emotion. If you need help, look in a mirror or ask a friend to show you!

THEN, draw an action happening to that character that might change the emotion they are feeling.

LAST, draw the same character, but feeling a new emotion.

1. Character feels strong emotion

2. Something happens!

3. Character feels a new emotion

FIRST,

THEN,

LAST,

Grownups can share 3-panel comics with us at <https://www.storypiratescreatorclub.com/submit>